TASTING NOTES

Citrus color with golden hints, with aromas of plums and other yellow pulp fruits, complexed with notes of dry gunpowder. Its freshness is well combined with the unctuousness and volume of this wine, which ends with a long aftertaste.

PAIRING SUGGESTIONS

It harmonizes perfectly with all types of white meat, fatty fish cooked in the oven with olive oil or cod with cream.

THE REGION

The Geographical Indication (IG) Lisbon is one of the most important Portuguese wine regions, in terms of vineyard area and wine production. Formed by gentle hills, of low relief, IG Lisboa extends from the capital of Portugal to the north, always along the coast, in a range not exceeding 40 km wide. Multifaceted region encompasses several denominations of origin, ancient and modern, with distinct characteristics. The climate is temperate, of Atlantic influence, with relatively mild summer, cooler and wetter in the areas closer to the sea, warmer and drier in the areas protected by Montejunto mountain.

HISTORY

Surrounded by woods and forests, in 16th century the Quinta do Gradil estate was inhabited by partridges, hares, foxes and deer. This range, which express the purity of each grape variety, pays tribute to the biodiversity that surrounds the vineyards and reasserts our commitment to the environment.
